Respecting Diversity

Sexual Orientation

preventing discrimination against lesbian, gay and bisexual
people in the workplace.

More than 1 in 20 people in the current UK workforce are lesbian, gay or bisexual (LGB).

What is “Respecting Diversity”?

Respecting Diversity is a training solution that enables the delivery of Equality and Diversity training in-house. The first film, Sexual Orientation, explores the issues surrounding Sexual Orientation and the impact on both employees and the organisation.

What can “Respecting Diversity: Sexual Orientation” do for you?

Respecting Diversity: Sexual Orientation gives managers, staff and HR policy makers the confidence in being able to talk about sexual orientation and how it relates to work.

Key Learning Points:

- Discover how organisations can create a culture of respect to benefit everyone.
- Identify the importance of not making assumptions and recognising stereotypes.
- Be able to identify acceptable and unacceptable behaviour.

How can “Respecting Diversity: Sexual Orientation” be applied?

This flexible training resource can be used as a short (45 minutes) session or as part of a longer (half-day or full-day) session on sexual orientation within a diversity programme.

The package contains:

- An interactive DVD or E-Learning package with the film broken down into sections (total duration: 40 minutes).
- A comprehensive Instructor & Trainer's Guide with participant training materials and self-study guide.

Special Offer!

This programme is developed in partnership with Stonewall. There is a special discount for Diversity Champions members: find out more at www.stonewall.org.uk
